

Production Revenue History Insurance Plan & Weather Index Plan

Tara Ponds, Risk Management Agency - Kansas City, MO

An overview of the Production and Revenue History plan of insurance which is targeted to specialty crops. The overview will include the impetus for the plan, current availability, and planned future development of the plan for additional crops/areas. Factors for determining crop candidates to be covered under the plan will be also discussed.

Tara Ponds is the Specialty Crops Coordinator at the Risk Management Agency. In this role, she works to address the needs of specialty crop producers, consistent with the USDA Secretary's vision to make USDA the most effective, most efficient, and most customer-focused department in the Federal government. Her primary focus is to assist the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation with evaluating the potential for providing additional policies or coverage options for specialty crop producers. Her efforts to explore where specialty crop market potential exists and to identify ways to improve the risk management safety net for specialty crop producers are a critical component of RMA's ongoing efforts to provide outstanding service to RMA customers.
